Mission:  The King County Bar Foundation is dedicated to ensuring access to the legal system and encouraging diversity in the legal profession.

Vision:  A legal system open to and representative of every member of our community.

Message from the President

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

2006-2007 was a great year for the King County Bar Foundation. The highlight of our year was the Breakfast with Champions. Bob Edwards, of NPR fame, spoke at what has become a signature event for the King County legal sector: an opportunity for lawyers, judges and their friends to gather together for collegiality and to hear an engaging speaker. Over the years, the Breakfast has featured Gloria Steinem, Sherman Alexie and Paul Rusesabagina, the real-life manager of the Hotel Rwanda. In 2008, the Foundation will continue its tradition of presenting interesting speakers when best selling author Scott Turow will speak on April 14, 2008. Save the date!

In 2006-2007, $1,097,000.00 was raised by the King County Bar Foundation. These funds were used to support our efforts to increase diversity in the legal profession and provide legal assistance to persons in need.

For the second year in a row, the Foundation granted $125,000 to the University of Washington and Seattle University Law Schools for minority law student scholarships. At our annual Bar Scholars Reception, I was able to meet many of the scholarship recipients and I can attest that they are worthy of our support and will be wonderful additions to the legal community when they graduate.

Your support of our Community Legal Services Programs enabled over 1,600 attorneys to volunteer 23,689 hours of pro bono legal services, worth more than $6,600,000. This means 9,560 people in King County received legal assistance who may have had to go without, were it not for the involvement of our donors and volunteers.

Despite our successful year, the unmet need for legal services and support for efforts to increase diversity remains substantial. We pledge to build on this year’s achievements and carry on our efforts to reach new records in contributions and personal commitments of time and talent in the years ahead. In order to do this, we need your help and participation.

Thank you for your interest in our work and we hope to see you at the Breakfast with Champions on April 14, 2008!!

Sincerely,

Hon. Charles S. Burdell, Jr. (Ret.)

Nearly 1,000 attorneys, judges, and friends of the King County Bar Foundation attended the seventh annual Breakfast With Champions on Tuesday, April 3, 2007 at the Westin Hotel in downtown Seattle. Over $300,000 dollars was raised in support of the Foundation’s pro bono and diversity programs.

Bob Edwards, National Public Radio’s Morning Edition host for 25 years and current host of XM Satellite Radio’s flagship program The Bob Edwards Show, delivered the keynote address. Mr. Edwards’ words inspired the audience with a renewed passion for pro bono service by commenting on the remarkable career of Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis, considered by many to be the grandfather of pro bono. Mr. Edwards strongly encouraged Breakfast guests to get involved in civil legal aid service by volunteering their time and by donating to the Foundation.

The program included a special highlight of the Foundation’s Minority Law Student Scholarship Program. Every year, the Foundation grants funds to the University of Washington and Seattle University law schools to assist both law schools with attracting outstanding students of color. Last year, the Foundation awarded $125,000 for this purpose. Over 500 students have benefited from the Foundation’s scholarship program and more than 50% of these students practice in the King County area.

Breakfast guests, encouraged by the words of Foundation trustees Megan Wells and Paul Mutty, made contributions in support of the Foundation’s pro bono legal services and diversity programs. Last year, every dollar received by the Foundation resulted in $8.30 in legal services or helped leverage an education for a minority law school student.

The Champion of Justice and the Champion of Diversity awards were presented to Fredric C. Tausend by the Honorable Ronald C. Cox. Mr. Tausend was honored for his leadership in diversity and justice initiatives in the King County legal community, including his spearheading of the development of the Future of the Law Institute, and his advocating for hiring, advancement, and retention of minority lawyers in the local law firms.
Increasing Diversity in the Legal Profession

KCBF is committed to working at all steps of the “pipeline” - from high school to the bar - to increase diversity in King County’s law offices and courtrooms.

The Future of the Law Institute (FLI)
FLI gives minority and economically disadvantaged high school students encouragement and resources to pursue a career in law. Through an exciting two-day program of workshops, career panels, lunch with judges, a mock trial and more, students are introduced to the profession. The two-day event is followed by a year-long mentorship program matching FLI students with lawyers, judges, and law students committed to sharing their experience. FLI also provides summer internship opportunities in law firms and courtrooms. Additionally, since 2003 FLI has distributed $7,000 in scholarships to alumni attending two and four year universities.

Each year over 100 volunteers from the bar, bench and law schools participate in FLI programming. FLI has won awards for excellence and innovation from the American Bar Association, Minority Corporate Counsel Association, LexisNexis Martindale-Hubbell Legal Fellowship Foundation, and Asian Bar Association of Washington.

Building a Book of Business
Based on the premise that those minority attorneys who are successful within law firms are more likely to stay, this program helps minority associates in private practice improve their chances for success. In a closed door dinner seminar, successful minority lawyers instruct participants how to more effectively market themselves and acquire new clients for their firms.
